Old Hill station opened in 1866.

In 1878, it became a junction station when the lines north to Dudley and south to Halesowen were opened.

The passenger service to Halesowen was relatively short lived and was withdrawn on 5 December 1927, although trains for workers at Austin’s Longbridge Works continued until September 1958.

The passenger service to Dudley was known locally as “The Bumble Hole Line” and was withdrawn on 15 April 1964.
