Kidderminster station opened on 1 May 1852 on the Oxford, Worcester and Wolverhampton Railway. The famous main station building, described as the ultimate in half-timbering”, was built in 1863 but was demolished in 1968 when it was deemed to be beyond repair. The current booking office opened on 3 July 1974.

It became a junction in 1882 for the Severn Valley and Wyre Forest lines to Stourport-on-Severn, Bewdley, Bridgnorth, Ironbridge, Shrewsbury, Tenbury Wells and Woofferton Junction on the Welsh Marches line. Bewdley to Woofferton Junction closed to passengers on 1 August 1962, Bridgnorth to Shrewsbury in 1963, and the rest of the network on 3 January 1970. Kidderminster to Bridgnorth has now been reopened by the Severn Valley Railway with services from the adjacent Kidderminster Town station.

The main station building and its forecourt were rebuilt and opened in 2020.
